The Russian Civil War (2): White Armies (Men-at-Arms) (v. 2)

Synopsis

Soon after the February 1917 Revolution, and the abdication of Tsar Nicholas II, the White Cause began to emerge and oppose the Bolsheviks. There was, however, no single, united White Army to fight the Red Army and the forces available to the Whites represented a spectrum of political factions including monarchist military organisations and social-democrats. Many of the Cossack hosts also sided with the Whites, seeing it as an opportunity to create their own independent states; others remained neutral or hostile to both sides. This fascinating text by Mikhail Khvostov examines the colourful uniforms and the equipment of the White armies of the Russian Civil War (1917-1923).

On Russian Civil War (1) and Russian Civil War (2): "Each book is a wealth of information essential to anyone interested in the RCW from Murmansk to the Ukraine and Crimea to Siberia and the Far East... What is most striking about all of these books is the evolution of the skill of the artist Andrei Karachtchouk... These books are an essential part of anyone's Russian Civil War library." -HMG

Packed with specially commissioned artwork, maps and diagrams, the Men-at-Arms series is an unrivalled illustrated reference on the history, organisation, uniforms and equipment of the world's military forces, past and present.

For those whose knowledge of the Russian Civil War is limited (as mine was) this book provides a great overview of the "White" & Other Forces involved in the conflict. It also has Great Color illustrations of the various uniforms worn & weapons carried and many B&W photos of those who fought on those various sides. It is a great read that will spur one on to want more information on what contributed to Russian & World History for the next 70 years or more...

Very informative, nicely illustrated, nice addition to anyones historical library!

A very informative book with great illustrations. I highly recommend this book to someone with an interest in this period.

A very well done book, good illustrations throughout. Covers the gamut of armies opposed to the Bolsheviks, from regional to Restorative. A good primer on a subject oft neglected in Western circles.

so little is taught about Russia in this country. this is book helps to understand the Russian civil war at the close of world war one. the seller shipped it quickly.

THIS ENTRY FROM THE OSPREY SERIES LEFT ME WANTING MORE!. THE AUTHOR DOES A GREAT JOB DETAILING THE COMPOSITION OF THE VARIOUS WHITE ARMIES THAT FORMED 1919-1923, BUT GIVES VERY LITTLE REAL HISTORY OF THESE UNITS AND THEIR ULTIMATE FATE. ESPECIALLY NEEDING IS AN ACCOUNT OF THE FATE OF SOME OF THE WHITE LEADERS. A FULLER NARRATIVE ABOUT THE BATTLES WITH RED FORCES WOULD HAVE HELPED. AS USUAL I WOULD LIKE TO SEE MORE DETAILS ON MEDALS AND INSIGNIA, BUT ALL IN ALL THIS WAS NICELY DONE.

THE RUSSIAN CIVIL WAR (2): WHITE ARMIES MIKHAIL KHVOSTOV OSPREY PUBLISHING, 2004 QUALITY SOFTCOVER, $17.95, 48 PAGES, PHOTOGRAPHS, ILLUSTRATIONS, TABLES
The Russian Civil War of 1918-1922 arose out of the cataclysmic events of World War One. This civil war dwarfed all others of the 20th Century in scope and significance. The lives of tens of millions were lost or changed forever in the ensuing conflagration-from battle, disease, famine, imprisonment, execution, dislocation, and exile. New weapons of war emerged. The airplane, armored car, tank, and armored train were tested over the vast expanses of Russia, the largest country in the world, in a war of mobility not seen on the relatively static fronts that characterized World War One. Even so, the older weapons of war remained. This was the last war in which cavalry armies duelled en masse, sword on lance. Bugles still rang and unfurled flags fluttered above infantry charging into the steel mouths of guns. More than two dozen countries took part in these torturous years of civil war. Peripheral regions of the former Russian Empire that had broken away to form new nations had to fight for independence: Finland, Poland, Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia, Belarus, Ukraine, Georgia, and Azerbaijan. Other countries directly intervened in the conflict as a consequence of events arising out of World War One, including Great Britain, France, Italy, Canada, Japan, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Romania, Greece, the Ottoman Empire, and the United States. Still others participated in the fighting because their troops were trapped inside Russia at the end of World War One, such as Serbia and Czechoslovakia, or fought because the civil war spilled over into their territory, for example, Mongolia and China. At the end, the maps of Northeastern and Eastern Europe, the Caucasus, Central Asia, and the Far East had to be redrawn. Soon after the 1917 February revolution, and the abdication of Czar Nicholas II, the White cause began to emerge and oppose the Bolsheviks. There was, however, no single, united White Army to fight the Red Army and the forces available to the Whites represented a spectrum of political factions including monarchist military organizations and Social-Democrats. Many of the Cossack hosts also sided with the Whites, seeing it as an opportunity to create their own independent states; others remained neutral or hostile to both sides. This fascinating book, THE RUSSIAN CIVIL WAR (2) WHITE ARMIES examines the colorful uniforms and the equipment of the White armies of the Russian Civil War. With that being said, there is one mistake that must be corrected in regard to the caption on Page 46. The initial deployment of 1,889 enlisted and 48 officers of the 12th, 13th, and 62nd Infantry Regiments of the 8th Infantry Division deployed to Russia on the USS Thomas in mid-August, 1918. This was followed by a second deployment of 1,886 on the USS Sheridan and 1,811 on the USS Logan in September, 1918 to Russia. Prior to the above deployments, were the deployments of the 27th and 31st Infantry Regiments from the Philippines on the USS Merritt, USS Crook, and USS Warren to Russia via Japan in early August, 1918. They were the first U.S. Army units to arrive in Vladivostok. Seventy-five U.S. Marines from the USS Brooklyn (the flagship of the U.S. Asiatic Fleet) were reinforced by fifty U.S. Marines from the USS New Orleans (it had sailed from Cavite, Philippines). Lt. Colonel Robert A. Lynn, Florida Guard Orlando, Florida

This is the second of the two-book series on the armies engaging each other in the Russian Civil War. This particular book deals with the "White" (capitalist) armies which were trying to crush the new Bolshevik Party and their new Red Army which had taken over the Russian government in October of 1917.
