Dominic Beddow produces informative maps of cities from Amsterdam to Zanzibar. His Collins Discovering London map was his first big project. Commissioned way back in 1987, it is now in its 10th edition.

This map is a fairly good scale (1:5600, 11 inches = 1 mile) and encompasses a convenient amount of territory. Location of Scotrail stations are provided as well as the subway stations. On the backside is a small map of "further out" (1 inch = 1 Km) as well as a somewhat enlarged scale map (1:3330, 19 inches = 1 mile) of the downtown center. There are fewer pictures of buildings here so this may be more useful. The back also provides a key for streets, sights, hotels, shops, pubs, eating out. Couple of problems that decrease its star value for me: 1) made of paper that will tear (and I assume can get wet). I would have preferred plastic infused or laminated so that none of the 8 creases will tear. 2) The large, front side map provides pictures of downtown buildings that a tourist might be interested in. However, these are larger in scale than the streets. A building picture might consume 2-3 blocks. That makes it difficult to easily read street names and plan routes as many of Glasgow's streets are one-way.

Detailed and easy to find specific places.

Exactly what we wanted. Provided easily readable map of Glasgow with sightseeing points clearly noted. We recommend this to anyone.

I used this map on a recent trip to Scotland, it was a great map with all the points of interest.

I loved this map- found it really useful. The one drawback is the buildings sometimes block the streets.

ty

Best because it has streets and a index of them.....
